

ENRAGED MILLIONAIRE DE, HUNGER STRIKES, AND OTHER BOSTONIANS

Boston patriots today endorsed the demand of the London clergy that suffragettes on hunger strikes in England shall be allowed to die if they won't eat, instead of being forcibly fed.

Rev. A. H. Newman, D. D., pastor of People's Temple, Berkeley street, put the matter tersely when he said: "If the women do not eat any food in prison why it's up to them."

Others agreed with this view. Some held that the question of actual death will not come up, because the hunger strikes will end in the end. Here are opinions gathered among Boston clergymen today on the "let them die" question in London.

Rev. A. H. NEWMAN, D. D., People's Temple
Why all this fuss about women? Why should they be persecuted so differently than men? Why do they deserve any discrimination? If they do not eat, let them die. I do not take much interest in them. I am not a suffragist. I am a reverend father. These women want equal suffrage. I am willing to equal the same rights as men. But when they get into prison, they should be treated just like any other criminal. There should be no sex distinction in punishment. The law is for both sexes. Now these women are making such horrible acts as they are reported to have done, most expect to be punished. If they will not eat, why should we care? They have the freedom of their will. They should not be compelled to eat. If they die from starvation, how fast is it?

Rev. D. M. GIFFORD, D. D., Brookline Baptist Church
If these suffragettes want to die, why let them? They have a right to die. If they look at it that way and they are to be executed in the way, say, like the martyrs of old, if they think that they are going for principle, let them have the right they please. They have a right to the vote also. We can not interfere with their right. If I had my way and could be induced to be drawn in this controversy, I would give the women of England an island and then I would launch them on an island like St. Helena, and let them carry out their vote of death and life. They have a right to live and the right to die and to get the vote.

Rev. F. H. HARRIS, D. D., St. Martin's Church, Jamaica Plain
D. D. associate pastor, Warren Avenue Baptist
I believe that there should be no distinction in the treatment of women and men, when they are charged with similar other crimes. They are acting like men in their behavior. They are pursuing methods which bear a direct contrast to the methods and dignified ways of American suffragettes. But they will not starve. They have been adding too much for sympathy when they have committed atrocious acts. I am not opposed to women's suffrage, but I am opposed to this drastic way of getting it. These women, while I am sure, who, starvation is the hardest thing to face in front of a good meal. Give the women the best of meals in prison.

Rev. C. F. DOLE, D. D., Unitarian Church, Jamaica Plain
All this talk about the suffragettes dying from hunger is particularly "stupid." They will not die. Keep food before them when they are in prison. They will eat if I feed them. Give them occasional food. It is with regret that we read that the women suffragettes of England are allowing themselves to act like anarchists. They are not living up to principle. They are now being the state when we can sympathize with them, and if they get into prison, as they must agree to do, to get for their deeds, it is not necessary for us to imagine that they will die from hunger strike.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL, president of the Massachusetts and New England Association for Women's Suffrage
Suffragettes would like nothing better than the chance to die for the principles for which they are fighting. Bernard Shaw said that the government would let any one any criminal who went on a hunger strike die, but that it does not dare to do so in the case of the suffragettes because it would cost the government so many votes. I think that the only motive is to give women the ballot. Everybody knows that this will have to be done sooner or later. And the sooner it is done the better. This, as Margaret Policy said the other day, would soon stop militancy.

Mrs. GERTRUDE LEONARD, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage Association
It seems to me a rather peculiar stand for the clergy to take. It certainly is not a humane or Christian standpoint. Of course, we do not believe in militancy in any form, however be it carried out. We do not believe in letting them die of hunger, surely a minister wouldn't let a man who attempts to commit suicide die without doing everything to save him. Yet that very man wants to die. Now the militancy don't want to die. Nevertheless they are willing to die for what they believe to be right.

Vote Tonight on Tolls Repeal Bill

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The Senate would vote on the Panama canal tolls tonight with the expectation today of both sides that the measure will pass. The only obstacle in the way of a vote, according to the leaders, is the speech of Senator La Follette, who has refused to indicate how much time he will consume.

The adoption of the so-called Norris-Sumner amendment, which provides that the passage of the repeal bill shall not be a waiver of any rights the United States may possess to accept its share from payment of tolls through the canal, is considered.

PARLIAMENT GARRAGE FROM THE FURES'

LONDON, June 9.—Hangers of the suffragettes "Paries," as the militants are now called, have aroused public feeling to such a pitch that it is expected the session of Parliament which began today will take action designed to curb the growing violence of the women.

Fifty police and detectives were on duty in Parliament square to prevent suffragettes from getting into the Parliament building and to prevent assaults upon cabinet ministers.

Scotland Yard today captured the secret headquarters of the militant suffragettes from which the "Paries" have been directing their destructive campaign since strict police surveillance was placed over the offices of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Leaders of the militants had rented rooms in Tavill street, Westminster, where they carried on all the clerical work relating to their engagements in violence.

The women directly disguised the nature of the offices and it was only by accident that the Scotland Yard detectives learned of the place.

Detectives found the secret office by trailing a well-known militant leader, who was suspected of being engaged in a plot to do personal violence to King George.

The police did not act at once when they made their important discovery, but waited until a number of women were in the office. The raid was made this afternoon and caused much excitement in the neighborhood.

The authorities seized books and documents in the office. It is believed that criminal prosecutions will be started against those whose names appear on the confidential lists. The police also found a number of women engaged in the dangerous work of burning buildings and fighting politicians.

PLAN TO RAID STATE BAIL.
Wood had said and said to the Scotland Yard officials that the militants had planned to make a desperate demonstration at the opening of the Parliament building tonight with the intention of spoiling this celebration.

The information furnished another incentive for the raid as it was believed that all the plans had been worked out by the militants and that they existed there showing the details of the plot.

As a result of the evidence discovered in the raid for the charge of conspiracy. The women were immediately arraigned on the charge of conspiracy. The women were named as Constance Hall, Nellie Hall, Helen Arnes and Julia Farnsworth, and were held for arraignment the prisoners were taken to the art gallery and scratching them. Then they looked down the judge and he was forcedly restrained from putting the counsel table.

REAL 300 STRONG INSPECT GAAAL

Thirteen hundred and sixty-five members of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, guests, wives and daughters, boarded the "Dorothy Bradford" this morning at her dock on Atlantic avenue and sailed away to Sandwich for a tour of inspection of the Cape Cod Canal.

Mayor Curley and Lieutenant-Governor Barry were the principal guests of the day. Chairman Frederick J. Macdonald of the Public Real Estate Commission and Everett Stone of the Commission, Judge Paine, George Marlow and William S. McCarry of the Harbor and Land Commission, Herman Hermal of the Real Estate City Committee, Charles Burdick, W. T. Fitzgerald and members of the Governor's Council were among those aboard.

The eighteen hours a strong easterly wind has been blowing and it was expected the Bradford would have a rough trip to Sandwich. The ladies came in heavy coats and the men wore overcoats and needed them. At Sandwich it was planned to disembark for a time, then proceed up the canal as far as it was navigable.

Proud of Nephew—
Hero at Vera Cruz

When Mrs. Lavina Merrill of No. 21 Park street, Lynn, the seventy-year-old aunt with whom George E. best lives, heard that he had been commended for his bravery at Vera Cruz along with four other New England boys, she said: "George deserves it; the four other boys deserve it, and so do every man wearing a United States uniform who is down in that dreadful country. I'm proud of the other three, and I'm proud of the other four. The good old New England people will always stand up under fire."

galleries and slashing an attendant with a hatchet was sentenced to six months today.

A young woman who was found dead from drugs in her handsomely furnished West End flat was identified today as the daughter of Mrs. Catherine, a wealthy English matron. Miss Catherine joined the militant suffragettes under the name of Laura Gray and took part in all the exciting and dangerous work of the "Paries."

The excitement spread upon her to such an extent that she became a drug fiend to lessen the monotony of the methods which the suffragettes were not active. The flow of her hair was decorated with bottles of venereal and other drugs.

She also availed herself of her campaign against art masterpieces from the Louvre to the British Museum. A militant who gave the name of "Miss Louisa" and who was a high society woman and a painting of a bar by Rembrandt. The picture was valued at $500 and it was said that it would cost $500 to have the painting required.

MARY McGRATH who will lead the Grecian dances in the presentation of "Iphigenia" by the girls of the Academy of the Assump- tion, Saturday.

Sabbina Delia came from his home at No. 12 Thatcher street, North End, to Police Headquarters today and told, in the best English he can muster, how his young wife was mysteriously killed, and walked away to Sandwich for a tour of inspection of the Cape Cod Canal.

Reporters, police and to all else whom he could find to listen. Sabbina, with tears in his eyes, repeated his pitiable story, saying:

"On May twenty-one—coming—half past seven—two men came to my house—told my wife they got something for her to do—some work—dressed for street—she went out—she was killed—she never came back. I have seen her since. I have seen her through the day, thinking his wife might get in the hands of the police and be held in court."

Finally he wanted a lawyer to help him, particularly on account of the lack of English. He engaged John E. Cronin, a lawyer, a wide-spread search for his wife.

Bay State Girls Bear Vassar Chain

FOURKEEPLINE, N. Y., June 9.—Led by Miss Patricia Galt of New York, girls of the sophomore class of Vassar College bore the traditional bay state chain at the head of the commencement day parade. The honor of the "Vassar Varsity" was carried by all of the students at Vassar, as the chain bearers are chosen for their beauty and grace. Among the other chain bearers in addition to Miss Galt, were the following: Dorothy Sargent, Dorothy Galt, Norma Lottin of Philadelphia, Marjorie Arnold of Haverhill, Mass., and Edith Dutton of Springfield, Mass.

MISS ELSIE WEAVER SMITH, who will be the bride of John A. Kilmer of Brookline tonight.

Martin Kilmer, fifty-three, of No. 23 Union street, Charlestown, died today at the Heller Hospital from injuries which, according to the police charge, were inflicted by his son Michael T. Connelley, thirty-three, longshoreman, of No. 28 Bennett street, Charlestown.

Michael Connelley was arraigned today in the Charlestown police court charged with assault and battery on his father. He pleaded not guilty; an arrest was made in $2,000 bonds for a hearing Monday. On the defendant's bonds he was committed to the Charlestown street jail.

At 1:30 Monday morning Martin Connelley was taken to the Heller Hospital in the police ambulance from Bennett street. According to the information received by the police, Sunday night he visited his son, Michael, at his home, No. 28 Bennett street. Connelley hit his father with a chair knocking him down and jumping on his stomach after he was on the floor.

MEASURE HAS BEEN WEEKS COLLEGE

The one big measure of democracy before the Legislature of 1914 and this goes whether you spell democracy with a big D or a little one—the proposed amendment to the Constitution providing for the Initiative and Referendum, HAS BEEN HELD IN THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS SINCE MAY 1.

AMERICAN is today informed that the Initiative and Referendum amendment will be finally considered by the Ways and Means committee within a day or two.

Named by Speaker Cushing, and composed of the Republicans, four Democrats and one Progressive, the Ways and Means Committee is naturally expected to report that the amendment cut not to be submitted to the people.

On this proposition comes the next big test of gentlemen who were shorted in this House as Progressives or Democrats. Nothing will so help the Republican candidate for Governor as a performance by Progressives and Democrats on this bill similar to the treachery and treachery exhibited by ten or a dozen in each camp when the Constitutional Convention was up.

Governor, perhaps, might induce James E. Duffy to take the Boston Herald out of town for a few days or at least to guarantee not to put a double-header.

MEANING: Recess committees are the way.

Recess Committee appointment, meaning an extra $1000 and travel, has been a common thing since the first recess, to the surprise of those who forget the pledges of one's party.

Not that it is ever held out as a bribe, but you, things are never quite so easily.

The young legislator TELMITS HIMSELF.

If I am not too much of a Democrat, or too much of a Progressive, he may say to himself, "It may be that my chances for appointment to one of the recess committees will be improved. Why then, let me have not being renominated and re-elected at home?"

In this handling strong argument for the Initiative and Referendum.

Chargé appears to have had the legislative "shade" on Edie Kavin, whose bill to establish a State Athletic Commission and to regulate boxing and wrestling, has been rejected by the vote of 194 to 79.

Indeed, being a game youth, will try again.

The debate was interesting.

REPRESENTATIVE J. J. JOHN FRANCIS SHERIDAN of Ward 2, after eleven years' experience as a legislator, can say that better known, more favorably with the politicians I have met.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN E. LONCH of Cambridge, it is no longer the low-down element in the community that is expected to bring. Sitting around the arena may be the price of the day.

Investigating "unauthorized banking" work here, certainly, that must be done by somebody.

Not, however, that the Joint Committee on Rules, the bones of the Legislature—President Coolidge, Speaker Cushing, Senator Gordon, Hilton, Wells and Timilty, and Representatives, Dornheim, Cox, Turley, Fowler, Martin, Jewett, Hall, Meade, Tague and George P. Webster (twice), Rockcliffe, three Democrats, one Progressive have decided:

NOT to admit an order for the investigation of all private banks under the jurisdiction of the Bank Commissioner or the Insurance Commissioner; and

NOT to admit the order relative to an investigation by the Committee on Banks and Banking regarding the deposit of savings by employees with their employers.

Following the Street crash, District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier personally asked the Legislature for legislation, filed upon that request came the report of the Judicial Commission on Immigration, as to banking and the transmission of money.

Request of the Committee on Banks and Banking for a recess committee was, under the rules, in the CHAMBER OF DELEGATES.
